Glossary of Rifle Terms

Air rifle – A gun that uses a .177 caliber lead pellet propelled by compressed air instead of a gunpowder charge. The rifles can weigh up to 12.12 pounds.

Bull – Short for bull's-eye. There are 12 bulls per target, 10 for competition and two for sighting shots. The 10 ring is actually a dot in the center of the bull's-eye. In smallbore, the 10 dot is slightly larger than a pin head, but must be completely gone to score 10 points. In air rifle the 10 dot is slightly larger than the period at the end of this sentence.

Cleaned – A perfect target, in which the shooter hits a 10 on each of the 10 targets on the sheet for a score of 100. Can also be used to refer to a perfect match.

Front sight – The sight attached to the end of the barrel of the rifle, holding the front aperture.

Full course – In smallbore, a full course consists of 120 record shots, 40 in each position, fired in the following order: prone, standing, kneeling.

Half course – In smallbore, a half course consists of 60 shots, 20 in each position (prone, standing and kneeling).

Electronic Targets – A target system that uses microphones and sound waves from the bullet or pellet going through the paper to send to a monitor on each point.

Iron sights – Sights that employ no magnification.

Kneeling – Shooting from a kneeling position with a sling and kneeling roll to support the position.

Off hand – The unsupported standing position.

Perfect match score – In air rifle and smallbore, 600 is perfect.

Plug – A metal device used to score targets. Variations include the "inward plug" and "outward plug." With the inward plug, the score is determined by the contact point of the outside edge of the plug with the inside of the next highest scoring ring. With an outward plug, the score is determined by the contact point of the outer edge of the plug with the inside of the next lowest scoring ring.

Prone – Shooting from a lying position.

Range Officer – The person in charge of timing the match and "running the line," which includes assisting shooters who are having difficulties and enforcing rules governing the match.

Record shots – Also known as "shots for record," those shots that are counted toward the match score, with "sighters" not included.

Relay – One group of shooters firing the match at the same time.

Shooting glove – A padded glove, with or without fingers, used to ensure the comfort of the non-dominant hand (i.e., a right-handed shooter wears a glove on the left hand) as the shooter supports the rifle.

Shooting jacket – The jacket is made of leather or canvas and provides support and pads the shooter to minimize the effect of pulse and recoil. There are strict guidelines regarding the thickness.

Shooting boots – Boots designed for rifle shooting. They have the toe end of the sole and the heel cut flat for stability.

Shooting trousers – Snug canvas and/or leather pants usually worn over running tights or sweatpants. They often have padded reinforcements sewn on both knees and the seat to prevent the slipping of elbows and knees when firing from the kneeling position.

Sighting shots – Practice shots taken before going "for record." Sighting shots are unlimited and may be fired before the beginning of each position. Once a position's first record shot has been fired, no further sighting shots are permitted.

Sling – Adjustable strap with buckle adjustments and arm cuffs that provide stability. A sling is attached to the rifle and helps to support it in prone and kneeling positions.

Smallbore – A .22 caliber gun with an iron sight used in competition. It can be customized with special accessories and/or alterations (barrel length and style, stock, design, etc.) to fit the shooter's needs and comforts.

Spotting scope – A type of telescope used to locate shots in the target.

Tie Breaking – In NCAA competition, ties are broken as follows: 1) by the highest score in the last 10 shots; 2) by the highest number of 10s, 9s and 8s; or 3) by the highest number of inner 10s. When shooting other smallbore and air rifle competitions, ties are addressed by the rulebook of either the National Rifle Association or USA Shooting.

Ryann McGough fires a shot from the standing position.

Guide to Rifle Scoring

Great America Rifle Conference Championships

Nebraska joined the Great America Rifle Conference in 2004-05 after seven years as an independent program. The conference, which enters its 13th year of operation, includes Nebraska, Army, Kentucky, Memphis, Mississippi, West Virginia, Xavier and North Carolina State.

The benefits of participating in such an organization are many, but perhaps the most important is the conference championships held just prior to the NCAA Championships. Before joining the organization, the Huskers faced nearly a month-long break between qualifiers and the NCAA Championships. As a member of the GARC, Nebraska now has the opportunity to compete for the conference championship in the interim, allowing it to gauge its performance before heading to nationals. In the four seasons since joining the GARC, Nebraska has finished as high as a program-best second place at the ensuing NCAA Championships.

Nebraska captured its second GARC team championship in 2006.

2008 NCAA Championships

In 2008, the Nebraska rifle team earned its fifth consecutive trip to the NCAA Championships, marking the seventh trip in school history. The Huskers squared off against seven of the nation's top teams in West Point, N.Y., and finished in fourth place overall in the team competition. Three Huskers were honored as All-Americans: Kirsten Weiss capped her Husker career with a second-team smallbore award, giving her three All-America awards for her career; Amanda Jeffries and Elisha LaFond garnered second-team status in air rifle.

Former Husker Kirsten Weiss helped Nebraska to a fourth-place finish at the 2008 NCAA Championships.

Young Huskers Shoot For National Prominence

Huskers Aim to Get Over the NCAA Hump

The Nebraska rifle team has welcomed and appreciated its recent success - qualifying for the NCAA Championships five straight times from 2004 to 2008. Last season, the Huskers finished in fourth place, and Amanda Jeffries and former Huskers Kirsten Weiss and Elisha LaFond captured All-America honors.

This year, the Huskers have their sights set on bigger goals. Making the NCAA Championships is a great accomplishment, but second-year head coach Morgan Hicks would like to see her team excel on the national stage.

Led by Jeffries, the Huskers have their sights set on improving on last year's fourth-place finish at the NCAA Championships. With the loss of three seniors from last year's squad and no seniors on this year's team, Jeffries and fellow junior Christine Costello will shoulder the leadership load for NU. The Huskers were ranked fifth in the Collegiate Rifle Coaches Association preseason poll entering the season, and Hicks has high expectations for this year's squad.

"One of our team goals is to be in the top three at NCAAs," Hicks said. "I really do think we have a chance of making it in the top three. That's our main goal. We have a younger team. We're going to build off of every single match that we shoot."

The Juniors

NU's two talented juniors are expected to lead the Huskers this season. On last year's squad that featured three seniors, it was sophomores Amanda Jeffries (left) and Christine Costello (right) who led the Huskers in overall average. With another year of experience under their belts, Jeffries and Costello are the most experienced veterans on this year's squad.

The All-American Jeffries led Nebraska in 2007-08 with a 584.25 air rifle average. She captured six individual event titles on the year and earned second-team All-America honors in air rifle and All-GARC first-team honors in smallbore and overall. Jeffries will again be expected to lead the Huskers in 2008-09, as this year's six-person squad relies on consistency from its veteran shooters.

Costello, Nebraska's captain last season, finished as the second-best all-around shooter on NU's squad, with a 581.42 in air rifle and 572.17 in smallbore. She enters this season as one of NU's most consistent shooters and will look to maintain that reputation throughout her junior campaign.

The Sophomores

Ryann McGough (right) provided consistent air rifle scores to close out her freshman season, earning her a spot in the Husker lineup at the NCAA Championships. McGough will build off that experience in 2008-09, and she is expected to be a leader for the young Husker team. McGough should provide consistently high scores and will be counted on to be a regular in the Husker lineup this year.

Ashley Lane (left), although seeing limited action in her freshman season, will look for opportunities to show her improvement during her sophomore campaign. Hicks said Lane went through a transition year last season, but now that she has settled down and become adjusted to college, Lane could greatly improve her scores and consistency.

The Freshmen

Katie Kostal (left) and Sheena Mahloch (right) look to contribute for the Huskers in a big way this season, despite their inexperience on the collegiate level. Kostal brings a solid all-around shot to the Huskers. Mahloch, a Nebraska native, will use her freshman season to get accustomed to smallbore. Kostal and Mahloch provide a bright future for a strong rifle program that has been building at Nebraska in recent years.

The Schedule

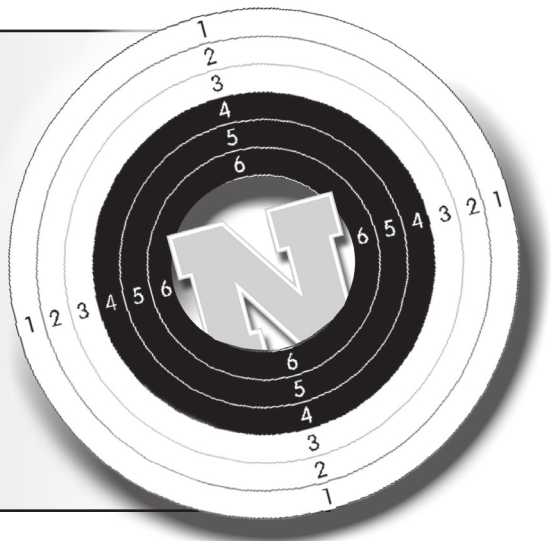

Nebraska's schedule looks very similar to last year's, with many of the nation's top teams appearing on this year's slate. The preseason No. 5-ranked Huskers face each of the other top eight teams at some point this season, including the three-time defending national champions, Alaska-Fairbanks.

The Huskers are at home five times this year, compared to just three in 2007-08. In addition to hosting Air Force, Mississippi and Memphis, the Huskers also bring in two preseason top-six opponents in Army and TCU.

The tough challenges are sure to provide NU with a fully developed mental focus when the GARC Championships and NCAA Championships roll around in March.

Husker Rifle Facilities: Leading the Nation

In April 2006, Nebraska became just the second university in the nation to add electronic targets to its rifle facilities. First seen only in international and Olympic competition, the electronic targets were added to the U.S. Air Force Academy's facilities before the Huskers adopted the new technology.

Electronic targeting enables shooters to aim at only one target instead of 10 different targets. The machine contains a roll of black paper, which refills the open target with a clean piece of paper after every shot. Four microphones in the electronic targets sense the precision of the shot, transmitting the information to an online computer monitor.

"We have strong facilities here at Nebraska," Head Coach Morgan Hicks said. "Not every range in the nation has the electronic target technology, so we are very fortunate that our athletes can call a first-class range home. At the NCAA Championships and in international competition, we shoot only on electronic targets. Especially for our shooters who are trying to make the national team or the Olympic team, it's huge to have the opportunity to train with the best technology. In any sport, you want to have every advantage possible in practice each day, and that is exactly what the Nebraska Rifle Range provides for our student-athletes."

Morgan HICKS

Head Coach (Second Season)
Murray State (2004)

Morgan Hicks enters her second season at Nebraska during the 2008-09 season after leading the Huskers to a fourth-place finish at the 2008 NCAA Championships. Prior to that, Hicks coached Murray State to a top-10 NCAA finish in 2007.

A 2008 ISSF World Cup rifle champion and 2004 U.S. Olympian as a competitor, Hicks spent the 2006-07 season as Murray State's men's and women's head rifle coach. In her first year at the helm of her alma mater, she not only led the Racers to a second-place finish in the Ohio Valley Conference Championships, but also coached them to an eighth-place finish in their 26th NCAA Rifle Championships appearance.

Hicks became the Murray State head coach after serving two years as the volunteer assistant coach and graduate assistant. Prior to her Murray State coaching experience, Hicks was a coach for the civilian marksmanship program, which honed rifle competitors across the United States.

As a rifle competitor, Hicks was an eight-time All-American for Murray State from 2000 to 2004, where she was crowned the 2004 NCAA air rifle champion. Hicks also has vast international experience, as she traveled to World Cups in Milan, Italy (2004, 2006), and Munich, Germany (2006), as well as the World Championships in Lahti, Finland (2002), and Zagreb, Croatia (2006).

She was a U.S. Olympic team member in 2004, when she earned a 12th-place finish at the 2004 Olympic games in Athens, Greece. Hicks also competed on the Junior Olympic team four times (1998-2001), earning the smallbore championship in 2001. In March 2008, Hicks captured gold at the ISSF World Cup 50M Three-Position Rifle competition.

Hicks graduated from Bethel High School in Spanaway, Wash., in 2000 before earning her bachelor's degree in physical education and health from Murray State in 2004. She then went on to receive her master's degree in secondary education at Murray State in 2006. In addition to being an NCAA-certified coach, Hicks is the secretary and treasurer of the Collegiate Rifle Coaches Association and a USA Shooting Board of Directors Athletic Rifle alternate representative.

Q&A with Head Coach Morgan Hicks

What is your coaching philosophy?

"It's more one-on-one and personal. This is a very individual sport, but it's important to realize how one score can affect other scores for the team. I encourage teamwork. A lot of times, coaches will tell a team 'shoot your 60 shots and tell me your score.' I want to know more about that score. I don't want to know just the end result; I want to know how they got there. That's the growth I want to see from each shooter. I also want them to enjoy their four years as collegiate shooters because they'll ultimately shoot better."

What qualities do you look for in a shooter when you're recruiting?

"When I'm recruiting, I look for someone who is a strong shooter and can handle shooting under pressure. If they're shooting U.S. matches, I look at their ranking. I want to build a strong team, so I'm looking for personalities that mesh well together. That makes a stronger team. It's difficult with our sport because we're so small, and I'm only able to sign two or three recruits each year. You have to be picky, and I know I want a talented shooter who fits in with the dynamics of Nebraska rifle."

What does your international success lend to your job as a coach?

"I think it's good that a lot of the recruits see what I've done. It shows that I have a lot of experience and knowledge. Simply because I am a younger coach at 26 years old, people could initially dismiss my credibility. I'm very recently out of college, but I think that helps because I can honestly say to a shooter 'I've done this; I know what you're going through, and I know how things work.' I can show them what is most effective. The international experience also helps with knowing how to juggle everything. Just a few years ago, I was shooting internationally, I was going to college, I had a job and I was shooting for Murray State all at once. I know how to balance everything, and I think my team benefits from that. It shows them that it's possible to hold things together when, for example, I'm coaching full-time, shooting internationally and doing well."

What match was most memorable in your career at Murray State?

"When I was in college, I played a lot of intramural sports. One night I played volleyball, and I broke my wrist. But I still wanted to compete because it was the middle of the season, and I didn't want to redshirt a year. I had a soft cast on my left wrist – my shooting wrist, so it has to support my gun – and I would take that cast off right before I'd shoot my match. My best career match score in smallbore was a 1,187, and it was with my broken wrist. There are things that will happen in life that you can't always help, but you still have to go to the range, put everything else at the door and just shoot. Overcoming adversity like that and knowing my team was counting on my score helped me keep shooting that year."

What was it like to win an NCAA title your senior year?

"I didn't expect it, but I wanted it. That was one of my goals in college. The first was to earn a college scholarship for rifle, the second was to be an All-American and the third was to win a national title. Air rifle was my last shot that day, and I shot a 398. I was up against a lot of great shooters, but I knew I could contend for it."

Tom OSBORNE

Athletic Director
Hastings College (1959)

A Hall of Fame football coach returned to his roots on Oct. 16, 2007, to become the 13th athletic director at the University of Nebraska. Tom Osborne accepted the position at the time because, Osborne said, "Harvey Perlman asked me."

Perlman, UNL's chancellor, asked Osborne to lead the program where he had served so productively as head football coach. Two months later, on Dec. 20, 2007, he announced that the word "interim" had been removed from Osborne's title, and he would remain athletic director until at least July of 2010.

Holder of master's and doctorate degrees from the University of Nebraska in educational psychology, Osborne said he probably would not have considered coaching if he had not met Bob Devaney, who convinced him to become a volunteer graduate assistant on his staff.

"Bob epitomized the value of loyalty, and I will always be grateful for the confidence he showed in me," Osborne said. "Because of his leadership and empowerment as a coach and an athletic director, I was fortunate to serve 25 years as head coach."

Devaney put Osborne in charge of the offense that won two national titles and allowed him to concentrate on three areas he thought were important – a strong academic program for student-athletes, a strength and conditioning program and a more formalized program to attract walk-on players.

Each area has grown into an important asset for all 23 Nebraska sports programs, which Osborne now oversees. Within months of his appointment, Osborne quietly re-established an athletic department mission based on five core values – integrity, trust, respect, teamwork and loyalty.

Nebraska fans across the country and around the world have expressed confidence in Osborne's experience, his understanding of Nebraska and his desire to elevate the program back among the nation's elite.

Since retiring from football in 1997, Osborne has found several ways to stay active in his home state. His most visible post-coaching foray came in the political arena, as he served three terms in the U.S. House of Representatives from Nebraska's 3rd congressional district from 2000 to 2006. He also made a gubernatorial bid in 2006 before turning to academia.

A native of Hastings, Neb., Osborne served as a senior lecturer at Nebraska in the College of Business Administration, teaching leadership and business ethics, in the fall of 2007. He completed the fall semester while working in the athletic department. Osborne has also worked as a consultant for local college athletic departments over the past two years.

"I've spent the majority of my life working with the athletic department at the university and I want to do what I can at this point to continue in the pursuit of excellence that has been previously established," Osborne said.

Widely known for his leadership, integrity, honor and compassion, Osborne has poured time and effort into building a unique mentoring program within the state. The TeamMates program, founded by Tom and his wife, Nancy, in 1991, provides support and encouragement to school-aged youth with the goal of seeing children graduate from high school and pursue a post-secondary education.

Osborne still actively provides leadership in the college football ranks despite being away from the sideline for a decade. He is currently a voter on the coaches poll for the Master Coaches Poll.

While he may hold a key position that molds the future of Nebraska Athletics, many will always remember Osborne for his legendary service to the program as a football coach.

Osborne was named Nebraska's 25th head coach following the 1972 season and worked the sideline for 25 years, the longest tenure in school history. Under Osborne's direction, the program achieved remarkable success, exceeding any in its rich history. The Cornhuskers mounted a 255-49-3 record under Osborne, good for a winning percentage of .836. The 255 victories are the sixth-most all-time among major college football coaches while the winning percentage ranks fifth all-time.

His achievements were so highly regarded that the National Football Foundation waived its three-year waiting period so that he could be inducted into its Hall of Fame in December of 1998. He is one of only four coaches in history to have the mandatory three-year waiting period waived.

Osborne's coaching career came to a poetic end in the 1998 Orange Bowl. In his final game, the Huskers defeated No. 3 Tennessee, 42-17, giving him a share of a third national title in his final four seasons. The victory left Osborne as the first coach in college football history to retire as a reigning national champion, along with the nation's best active winning percentage.

Osborne guided the Huskers to back-to-back titles in 1994 and 1995, then capped his career by sharing the 1997 title with Michigan. Nebraska's back-to-back national titles in 1994-95 made Osborne the first coach to accomplish that feat since Bear Bryant led Alabama to titles in 1978-79. Under Osborne, NU became just the second school all time and the first since Oklahoma in 1955-56 to post back-to-back perfect national championship seasons. In fact, Osborne's last five Nebraska teams put together the best five-year run in collegiate football history with an amazing 60-3 record, including five consecutive 11-win seasons.

Osborne-coached Nebraska teams captured 13 conference crowns, including six of his last seven seasons on the sideline. All 25 of his Husker teams won at least nine games and went to a bowl, while 15 won 10-or-more games.

In the classroom, Osborne's teams were just as successful as they were on the field. Under Osborne's guidance, the Husker football program totaled 65 CoSIDA Academic All-America awards in 25 years, averaging more than two selections per season. To put Osborne's dedication to developing complete student-athletes in perspective, he accumulated more football Academic All-Americans in his 25 years as coach than any other football program in the nation has produced in its history, as Notre Dame has produced the second-most football academic All-Americans all-time, totaling 50 selections dating back to 1952.

Prior to becoming head coach, Osborne spent five seasons under Devaney, helping the Huskers win back-to-back national championships in 1970 and 1971. In 1973, Osborne succeeded Devaney, who also served as Nebraska's Athletic Director from 1967 to 1993.

Osborne and his wife, Nancy, have three adult children, Mike, Ann and Suzanne and four grandchildren.

2008-09 Season Outlook

A native Nebraskan, Sheena Mahloch (pronounced Mall-lock) brings skill and experience shooting at the NU Rifle Range to the Husker program. Head Coach Morgan Hicks said she expects to give Mahloch time to adjust to smallbore shooting.

"She has a background in mainly just three-position air rifle, and we don't shoot that in college at all, so she doesn't have a strong background in smallbore," Hicks said. "She's building up on that. I expect her to have stronger scores as the year goes on as she gets a feel for it."

Before Nebraska

Mahloch joins the Huskers from Plymouth, Neb. A Tri-County high school graduate, Mahloch competed for Southeast Nebraska Shooting Sports 4-H club during high school. In 2007, Mahloch won the Nebraska State 3-P Junior Olympic title. Mahloch was a National Honor Society member and an FFA officer.

Personal

Sheena is the daughter of Tom and Connie Mahloch. She was born Sept. 29, 1989, and is majoring in pre-pharmacy.

Huskers Finish Fourth at NCAAs in Hicks' Debut Season

The Nebraska rifle team made Head Coach Morgan Hicks' inaugural season a successful one, qualifying for its fifth straight NCAA Championships appearance. The Huskers, who have appeared in seven NCAA Championships, finished fourth nationally with an aggregate score of 4,625 and a season record of 14-12.

Senior Kirsten Weiss closed the book on her accomplished NU career with a sixth-place individual showing in the NCAA smallbore finals, notching a 90.9 (674.9). The Cornwall, Pa., native was honored as a second-team All-American in smallbore by the National Rifle Association, giving her a career total of three All-America awards.

Sophomore Amanda Jeffries and freshman Elisha LaFond also had outstanding showings at the national competition, as the duo took home a pair of second-team All-America accolades in air rifle.

Four Huskers combined to win a total of 12 individual event titles in 2007-08, including six from Jeffries, who had four in air rifle and two in smallbore. Weiss added three in smallbore, while sophomore Christine Costello claimed a pair in smallbore and freshman Ryann McGough had one in air rifle in her first year.

The Huskers opened the 2007-08 season with a challenging two-match weekend, facing Kentucky and defending NCAA Champion Alaska-Fairbanks at the Nebraska Rifle Range. NU was unable to post a win in its first weekend of competition, falling 4,673-4,607 to UK and 4,654-4,614 to the Nanooks.

Nebraska then traveled to West Point, N.Y., posting a second-place finish (4,484) in a triangular with Army (4,660) and North Carolina State (4,505). Two weeks later, the Huskers earned their first dual win of the season with a 4,619-2,299 routing of Air Force in Colorado Springs, Colo. Three Huskers swept the individual titles, with Costello taking top honors in smallbore (574) and Jeffries and McGough tying for first in air rifle with a pair of 588 marks. McGough's score also set a career high for the freshman.

After a six-week hiatus, NU returned to competition the weekend of Jan. 12, suffering a pair of narrow losses to West Virginia and Navy. On Saturday, the Huskers fell to the Mountaineers, 4,615-4,599. Weiss starred for the Huskers, capturing a share of the smallbore title with WVU's Tommy Santelli, as both totaled a 579 on the event. Sunday's match in the Palmyra Invite with Navy saw Nebraska defeated again by just one point, 4,583-4,582. Weiss provided another bright spot for the weekend, tying with defending NCAA champion Josh Albright with a 574 in smallbore.

Amanda Jeffries was a second-team All-American in air rifle. Jeffries recorded the best air rifle and smallbore averages for the Huskers in 2007-08.

On Jan. 26, the team returned home for the first time in nearly three months, but TCU beat the Huskers, 4,641-4,627. Weiss took home top honors in smallbore for the third straight match with a 583 and was just one point shy of a perfect score in kneeling.

Nebraska then rebounded with three consecutive wins, beginning with a score of 4,606 over Ole Miss (4,573) and UAB (1,989). Jeffries dominated the individual standings, winning both the air rifle and smallbore titles with scores of 589 and 578, respectively. In the team competition, NU topped the charts in both disciplines, notching scores of 2,272 in smallbore and 2,334 in air rifle. The Huskers earned their second win of the weekend with a victory over Memphis, defeating the Tigers 4,636-4,496. Jeffries captured the air rifle title with a season-best score of 590, while Weiss took top honors in smallbore with a season-high 585.

Kirsten Weiss garnered second-team All-America honors in smallbore in 2007-08.

On Feb. 17, NU finished its regular season with a solid win, defeating Air Force 4,616-4,509. With their second win over the Falcons in 2007-08, the Huskers propelled themselves to the NCAA Championships for the seventh time in program history. Individually, Jeffries claimed her third consecutive air rifle title with a score of 589, while Costello topped the smallbore charts with a season high of 580.

At the GARC Championships in Oxford, Miss., Nebraska put up a fourth-place team performance with a score of 4,611. In the individual combined standings, Jeffries took third (1,167) and also earned runner-up honors in smallbore (680) and placed sixth in air rifle. LaFond added a fifth-place finish in the air rifle finals.

For her top-four placing, Jeffries earned first-team All-GARC accolades for smallbore and overall, as well as a second-team award in air rifle. LaFond was named to the air rifle second team, and Weiss took honorable-mention All-GARC status in smallbore.

In addition to numerous national and conference athletic honors, Nebraska boasted academic success to its credit, as six student-athletes were named to both the Big 12 Commissioner's Fall and Spring honor rolls. Weiss, McGough and senior Katie Harrington led the impressive contingent of Husker shooters with perfect 4.0 grade-point averages both semesters. Weiss, Harrington and fellow senior Kim Chrostowski each made their eighth straight appearance on the list, while Jeffries was included for the fourth time in her career, and Costello earned her third honor.

HOME OF CHAMPIONS

The Nebraska Rifle Range is located in the lower level of the Military and Naval Sciences building. One of the finest training facilities in the nation, the Nebraska Rifle Range features 10 firing points with caswell shooting stalls and electronic targets.

Moveable target carriers, which are controlled at the firing line, allow targets to be placed at any distance up to a maximum firing distance of 50 feet. Permanent stops for the targets are located at 10 meters and at 50 feet for NCAA air rifle and smallbore competition.

The Husker rifle team is also able to utilize some of the finest all-sport facilities in the nation at Nebraska, including the Charles and Romona Myers Performance Center (pictured at right). The Myers Performance center includes a massive strength complex and a technologically advanced Athletic Medicine center.

Nebraska's nationally renowned athletic programs enjoy some of the finest home facilities in the country. Nebraska is dedicated to providing its athletes top-notch game-day and practice atmospheres in every sport. Nebraska annually hosts several Big 12 and NCAA Championship events, including soccer, volleyball, baseball, track and field, softball, golf gymnastics, wrestling and swimming and diving.

Bottom left: Memorial Stadium is packed for every home game and features a giant HuskerVision replay board. The Mitsubishi replay screen is one of the largest in any college stadium in the United States, measuring 117-feet, 7 1/8-inches wide by 33-feet, 7 3/16-inches high, roughly five times the width of the original screens inside Memorial Stadium. There are also two new replay boards in the south end zone.

ACADEMIC SUCCESS

The success of Nebraska student-athletes reaches far beyond athletic competition. More Husker student-athletes have been selected to CoSIDA Academic All-America teams than any other school in the nation. Huskers have also earned more academic all-conference honors than any other league school, while NU has led the Big 12 in graduation rates in eight of the conference's first 12 years.

Huskers Continue Academic Tradition in 2007-08

In 2007-08, Nebraska student-athletes continued their tradition of academic success by earning seven CoSIDA Academic All-America awards across all sports. Nebraska's Female Student-Athlete-of-the-Year Sarah Pavan closed her career as one of the most decorated Huskers in history. A three-time first-team CoSIDA Academic All-American, Pavan earned her second straight CoSIDA Academic All-American-of-the-Year award. She was also honored as Nebraska's nation-leading 16th NCAA Today's Top Eight Award winner. Pavan was also one of three Nebraska volleyball players and six Huskers overall to earn prestigious NCAA Postgraduate Scholarships in 2007-08.

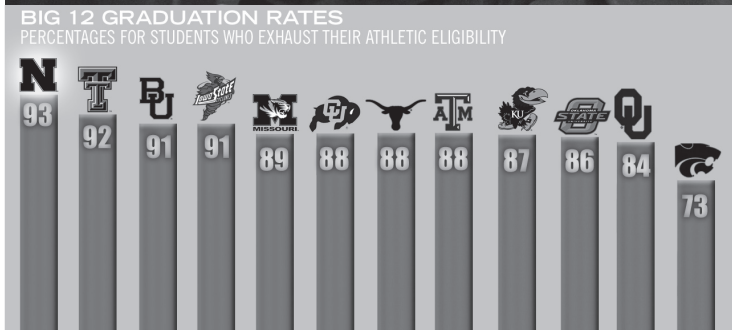

While Pavan was an academic and athletic star for the Huskers, she had plenty of company. Nebraska Male Student-Athlete-of-the-Year Stephen Tetrault was also a first-team academic All-American and an NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship winner, as were volleyball players Christina Houghtelling and Tracy Stalls, women's tennis star Imke Reimers and women's track and field standout Kim Shubert. Tetrault and Shubert added more postgraduate honors as Dr. Prentice Gautt Big 12 Conference Postgraduate Scholars.

Across all sports, Nebraska student-athletes claimed 120 academic All-Big 12 selections in 2007-08, including 98 first-team academic All-Big 12 honorees. NU student-athletes also earned a Big 12-leading 568 spots on the Big 12 Commissioner's Fall and Spring Academic Honor Rolls, including a conference-leading 71 Huskers who produced a perfect 4.0 semester.

The hard work, dedication and commitment of Nebraska's student-athletes in the classroom resulted in 103 current or former student-athletes earning degrees from August of 2007 through May of 2008. In fact, the Huskers continued to set the graduation standard among Big 12 Conference schools by producing an Exhausted Eligibility Graduation Rate of 93 percent.
